

Cambridge Seven Builds Boston!

Leaving Our Mark on the Boston Children's Museum

All of us involved with the design and construction of the expansion of the Boston Children's Museum were thrilled to participate in the "topping off" of the project, a beloved yet mysterious tradition. About 50 team members signed the whitewashed steel beam before a crane placed it into position atop the new wing. Following custom, a miniature evergreen tree and an American flag were strapped to the beam as it was hoisted into place. The expansion will be complete in late summer 2007.

Restored Cupola Returns to Charles Street Jail Hotel

A dramatic architectural transformation is taking place in downtown Boston, as the historic Charles Street Jail continues its metamorphosis into a four star, luxury hotel. In September, the Jail's newly restored cupola was lifted into its original spot overlooking the Charles River. The hotel, designed by Cambridge Seven, is slated to open in summer 2007.
