MODERN CURRICULUM PRESS
When professional educators need new choices.

Share with students the strengths of cultural diversity by exploring ethnic celebrations observed in the United States.

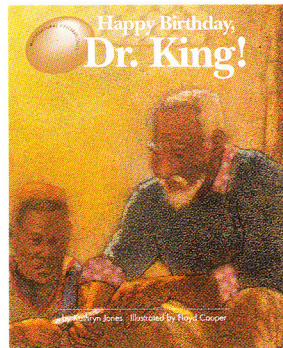

A First Clay Gathering
(Southwest Native American)
by Nora Naranjo-Morse
Illustrated by Roger Montoya
As a respected springtime Pueblo tradition, clay is gathered in order to sculpt exquisite pottery. These creations represent the unbreakable bond the Pueblo feel towards the earth and their beliefs.

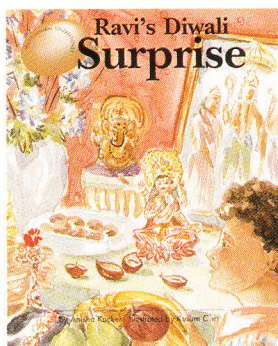

Mother's Day,
El Día de las Madres
(Mexican American)
by Ana Consuelo Matiella
Illustrated by Juana Alicia
From a serenade to a traditional Mexican feast and gift-giving, mothers are honored on this day in mid-May with a gala filled with true Mexican customs.

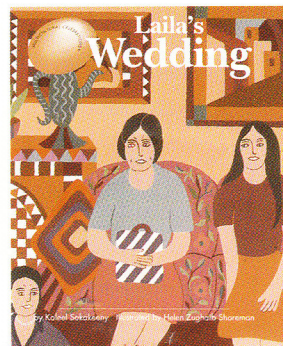

Obon
(Japanese American)
by Ruth Suyenaga
Illustrated by Yoshi Miyake
Held during July or August, the Obon festival is a time when Buddhist families remember and honor their ancestors and the contributions they made to Japanese heritage.

Happy Birthday, Dr. King!
(African American)
by Kathryn Jones
Illustrated by Floyd Cooper
In honor of the influential leader – Martin Luther King, Jr. – the third Monday in January commemorates his birth and his unforgettable fight for equality.

Ravi's Diwali Surprise
(Indian American)
by Anisha Kacker
Illustrated by Kusum Ohri
Celebrated in late October or early November, the Hindu holiday, Diwali, is a festival of lights displayed in hopes of bringing good fortune in the coming year.

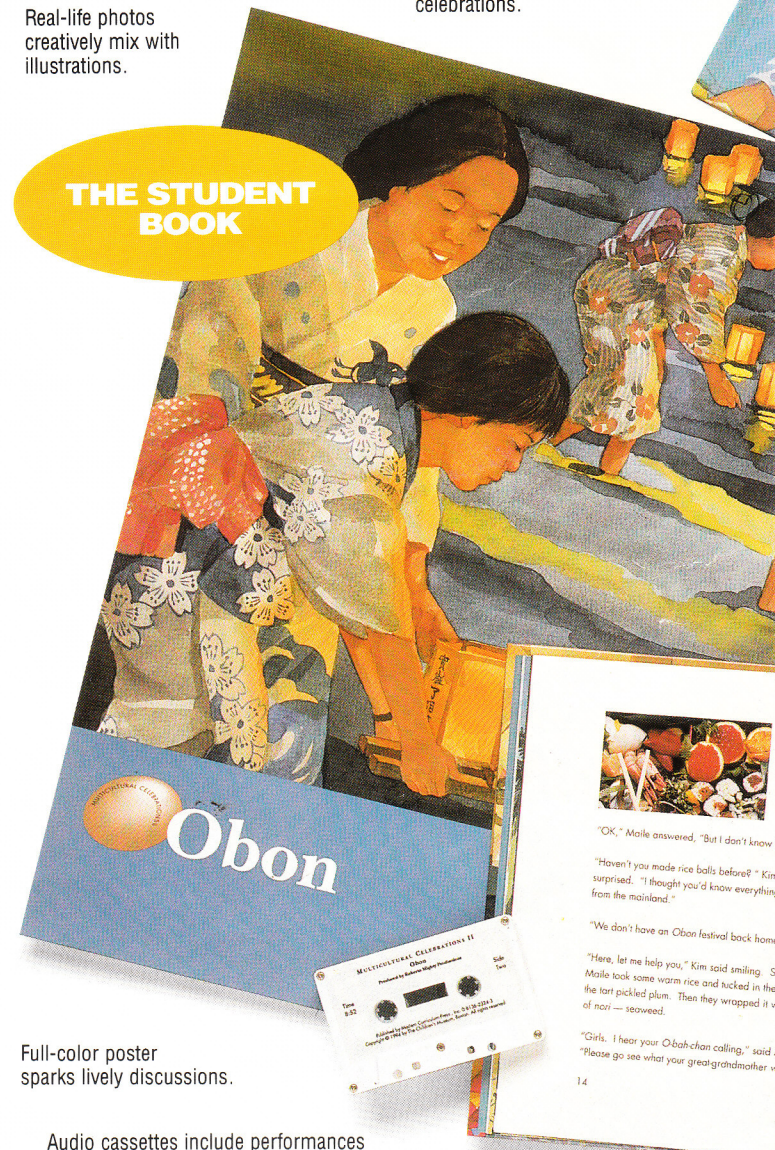

Laila's Wedding
(Lebanese American)
by Kaleel Sakakeeny
Illustrated by Helen Zughuib Shoreman
This Lebanese celebration of love overflows with family togetherness and the deep respect for Arab heritage and generations of tradition.

Developed in cooperation with The Children's Museum, Boston, NEW MULTICULTURAL CELEBRATIONS II shows students the richness of living with people of many heritages. As students get involved in the language, art, family customs, music, games, foods and crafts of these very special ethnic celebrations, they learn to appreciate the differences and parallels between diverse cultures.

All authors and illustrators share cultures represented in each book.

Explores the music, decorations, clothing and food of various celebrations.

Real-life photos creatively mix with illustrations.

Full-color poster sparks lively discussions.

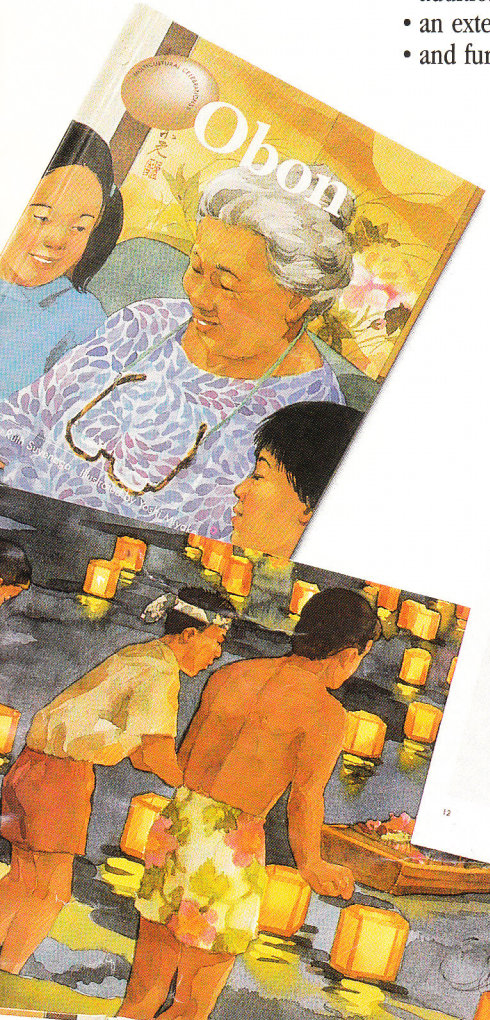

Audio cassettes include performances by native speakers and musicians.

Activities relating to cultural heritage, global awareness, social studies, geography and economics naturally arise.

The Teacher Resources Binder overflows with ideas and activities to spark every student's curiosity.
